

Glide Tour™ is Redefining the Real Estate Virtual Tour Experience

IntroDepot, Inc., an innovative video technology company, has teamed up with Atlanta Magazine to bring you this year's Virtual Intown Living Tour. This local Internet start-up has created a unique product named Glide Tour™ that is redefining how shoppers view properties for sale or lease on the Internet. Unlike the traditional four-room, 360-degree spin-around tour of the past, Glide Tour™ creates a full-motion video of the entire property. Buyers can now visually "feel" room depth and the sensation of walking through the property. Additionally, each Glide Tour™ includes professional narration describing the features as the tour progresses. This true virtual tour enables a buyer to walk through an entire home while listening to a real estate agent, builder or property manager describe the property. Also included with each Glide Tour™ is a digital still-photograph tour.

IntroDepot Founder and CEO Eddie James notes that real estate agents are incorporating Glide Tours into their listing presentations to impress potential sellers and obtain listings. When agents place their first order they receive a customized promotional video free of charge. It should be noted that Glide Tour™ isn't only for agents. Atlanta homebuilders are using this product on their Web sites to visually and audibly highlight the special features that make their homes unique. In addition, property managers and investors are now able to more accurately promote their rental properties to buyers in other cities who may be transferring to Atlanta by simply emailing their Glide Tour™ anywhere in the world. This produces a substantial savings in a buyer's time and expense.

Ordering a Glide Tour™ is convenient and easy. All the Glide Tour team needs is the address and zip code of the property and they handle everything else. Supra lockbox keys are used so the customer is not required to meet them on location, and the programming team will do all uploading of the tour and photos to an unlimited number of websites when finished. A weekly update report showing the number of views a property has had for that week is e-mailed to each customer. Each Glide Tour™ is also available on VHS tape and on CD.

Glide Tour™ is a fully owned subsidiary of IntroDepot, Inc., an innovative video technology company. ●

You can learn more about this innovative product online or simply give them a call today with the address and zip code of the property.
